Photographing Seasonal Lights

Outdoor Lights

Use a slow shutter speed.

Use a tripod. Set it up before dusk on a stable surface. With a slower shutter speed the photos will be effected by any wobbliness or movement. If you are using a phone invest in a tripod that is made for your phone.

Shoot with a low ISO to avoid grain. Shoot between 400 and 800 ISO. Lower is better. Try a few photos at different ISO's looking for the best ISO for your lighting situation.

Create Bokeh with Shallow Depth of Field.

Outdoors, aim to shoot at dusk. Too early and they won't look lit. Too late and you won't be able to see the background. Plan to get to the lights 15 to 20 minutes before dusk.

Take many pictures so that you have plenty to choose from.

Choose how close you'll be to the lights. Of course, a whole house picture will require you to be farther away than a picture of the ornaments on a tree. If you want to capture a close up of a tree for details of the ornaments, it will require less light than a picture of the whole house after the sun has set. Avoid using the flash as it will dull the brightness of the Christmas lights.

For capturing an ornament or decoration on a Christmas Tree, use a macro lens. For an entire house or grouping of trees use a wide angle lens. You can purchase a wide angle lens for some cell phones.

Set the aperture to a lower setting likely between f/2.8 and f/8. You need as much natural light as possible. F/2 or below will capture the lights floating. Higher f-stop will show the lights in focus.

Use the shutter speed between 1/8 of a second and 2/5 of a second.

On your phone use an app like Camera+2 to slow down the shutter.

Switch your white balance to Daylight or Tungsten . These settings will make the lights clearest and accurately colored.

For your cell phone use an app like the VSCO Cam.

Find a great spot and take plenty of trial shots. Great spots will follow in the newsletter.

Indoor Lights

If you are photographing indoor lights, your lighting within the room is crucial. Take your pictures from several different angles ahead of time to see which one looks best.

Avoid backlighting so your picture doesn't come out very dark.

At night, dim your house lights so that the tree stands out but can still be seen.

Greetings Club Members,

I wanted to pass along some updates regarding photos being displayed in the clubhouse that are FOR SALE.

Traditionally we have not asked for a commission percentage when items are sold.

Myself and our board members have researched and thought long and hard about this.

We have met with other artists in the village and they have a % commission within their clubs; clubs such as Toledo Artists, Stained Glass and the Potter's Guild.

It is in the best interest of the club that we receive 15% of the total sale of the piece sold.

If the item is paid for by cash or check then it would be 15% returned to the club.

If the item is paid for using a credit transaction then it would be 15% plus the processing fee.

We are working very hard to finalize the ability to accept credit card payments.

All payments would be made out to the PHOTO ARTS CLUB OF TOLEDO. The treasurer would then send the artist the check after the commission/ credit fees are deducted.

The commission rates would go into effect immediately.
